CITY OF HOLLISTER

Hollister is a city in, and the county seat of, San Benito County, California, United States. The population is approximately 44,218, according to the 2022 Census data. Hollister is primarily an agricultural town historically known for a variety of products, including Blenheim apricots, olive oil, vineyards, chocolate walnuts, and cattle.

Sitting on the western foothills of the Diablo Range and in an area historically inhabited by the Amah Mutsun band of the Ohlone indigenous people, the town, then located in Monterey County, was founded on November 19, 1868. Originally it was known as the San Justo Homestead Association, established by William Welles Hollister (1818-1886). The City of Hollister was then incorporated on August 6, 1872. The western portion of the modern County area, including Hollister, was separated from Monterey County in 1874 by the California Legislature and established as San Benito County. The county was expanded eastward in 1887 to include portions taken from Merced and Fresno Counties.

Today, Hollister has evolved into a suburban community that serves as the commercial, economic, civic, cultural, and educational center of San Benito County. Hollister's mix of land uses ranges from dense multi-level commercial buildings downtown to single-family residences and developed agricultural land.

The City of Hollister is bisected in two areas, in the north and the south of the city, by the Calaveras Fault, a branch of the San Andreas Fault. Much of the aseismic creep effects are clearly visible through areas of the city which has earned the City of Hollister the nickname of "Earthquake Capital of the World." The City of Hollister is a General Law City and is governed by a "Council/Manager" form of government. The Council, as the legislative body, represents the citizens of Hollister and is empowered by the Municipal Code to formulate citywide policy, enact local legislation, adopt budgets, and appoint the City Manager and City Attorney.

The City of Hollister, located 50 miles south of San Jose International Airport and 85 miles from the Port of Oakland is a suburb to the affluent San Jose and San Francisco metropolitan areas as well as the Monterey Bay area. The City of Hollister's location allows for access to Highway 101 and Interstate 5 and thus is a major commuter hub with roughly 65% of the city's working population (over 13,000 individuals) commuting outside the city limits for work.

CITY OF HOLLISTER

The City of Hollister provides a full range of services including law enforcement, fire protection, the construction and maintenance of streets and infrastructure assets, code enforcement, building inspections, water and wastewater, and general government administration.

City offices are comprised of the following departments:

- Administrative Services (Finance, Human Resources, and Risk Management)
